

Ford Transit Connect Bruno Joey Lift and Turny Seat

Voted the 2010 North American Truck of the Year and holder of a 5-star crash-test rating, the Ford Transit Connect provides a whole new option to the van marketplace. Its sleek European style, ample interior space, great gas mileage and economical pricing makes it a smart choice. The Transit Connect is a front-wheel drive vehicle and comes in XLT trim levels. It has sliding side doors in the rear like a minivan and two rear folding doors similar to a commercial van. The power train comes with a 136 horsepower 2.0 L, 4 cylinder engine with a 4-speed automatic transmission. Its safety features include ABS, traction control, an anti-skid system and front-side airbags. For many people, however, fuel economy might be its strongest selling feature.

Nor-Cal Vans is now offering the new Transit Connect with the Bruno Joey Lift. The Bruno Joey Lift, with a weight-carrying capacity of 350 lbs., makes it a perfect option for transporting wheelchairs, scooters and other types of equipment (copy machines or medical equipment, for example). The Bruno Joey Lift comes standard with a bulkhead and tie-down system to secure your equipment for safe transportation.

The Bruno Turny seat provides easy access for people with all types of mobility challenges, including the elderly, as well as those who use canes, crutches, walkers, wheelchairs and scooters. With a maximum weight-carrying capacity of 330 lbs., the Bruno Turny Seat, used in conjunction with the Bruno Joey Lift, is a low-cost, easy-to-use alternative in the personal-use mobility marketplace.
